

Teaching Law in a Time of Change and Conflict

November 17, 2023

Join Symposium Chairs Carolyn Shapiro and Christopher Schmidt, for a day examining the influence of recent legal developments, especially those from the Supreme Court, and the overall polarization of the nation on legal education. We'll explore the challenges for law professors in fields like criminal law, constitutional law, and administrative law and delve into different pedagogical approaches. Overall, the participants will evaluate the way legal change and political polarization raise new questions and challenges for those who prepare new lawyers.

8:45 AM Registration

Check-In & Refreshments on the 5th Floor

9:15 AM Welcome & Introduction

9:30 AM Teaching in a Polarized Environment

Joshua Braver, University of Wisconsin Law School
Raff Donelson, Chicago-Kent College of Law
Michael S. Kang, Northwestern Law
Michèle Alexandre, Loyola Chicago Law

10:45 AM Race & Gender in the Classroom

Sheldon Bernard Lyke, Loyola Chicago Law
Deborah Tuerkheimer, Northwestern Law
Jeannine Bell, Loyola Chicago Law

11:45 AM Lunch

12:45 PM Pedagogy

Harold Krent, Chicago-Kent College of Law
Evan Bernick, Northern Illinois University College of Law
Christine Kexel Chabot, Marquette University Law School
Manoj Mate, DePaul College of Law

2:00 PM Justice and/versus Law

Caroline Corbin, University of Miami School of Law
Francizka Coleman, University of Wisconsin Law School
William Baude, University of Chicago Law School
Steven Heyman, Chicago-Kent College of Law

3:15 PM Teaching How Change Happens

Steve Schwinn, University of Illinois Chicago, UIC Law
Noah Smith-Drellich, Chicago-Kent College of Law
Carolyn Shapiro, Chicago-Kent College of Law

4:15 PM Closing Remarks

Register Here:

bit.ly/LawSymposiumRegister

Chicago-Kent
College of Law

565 W Adams St,
Chicago, IL 60661

Learn More Here:

bit.ly/LawSymposiumInfo

Chicago-Kent | Law Review